This is a good fun game and the community is small as of right now but none the less its a community and you can play with your friends which makes it even better! I would get this if its on sale!. Interesting game, and it brings the interesting approach of being purely PVE witch in a way makes it a nice intro to hero games kind of game. When it works it's not bad, but the characters aren't exactly memorable, nor customizable.

The other issue remains is that sometimes you just can't access a friend's game, you might get stuck there on the splash load screen for seemingly no ryme or reason, and if it does it once, expect it to do it the next five times you try. For now I give it a thumbs up, but if I find that happens too regularly, there's just not enough here to topple the likes of the already well established league of legends. With that you just probably have an often harsh community to contend with from my understanding.. great game. but i dont recommend it cause its almoust no one online. u can still play alone but its not that fun.. Gets repetitive really soon. This game is really a lot of fun and i wish the community was much larger.

I've only had the game a week and already played my moneys worth in my opinion.

More people should buy it so they can spend more money on development and making this an even better game.. i like this game, it remind me Hero Siege on WC3 (Warcraft 3), but i cant find anyone and i hate play it alone.

6/10 because i cant find anyone

Swedish humor in its most swedish way.

Anybody who appreciates swenglish announcers and jokes understood mainly by swedes will love this game. Everybody else should play it anyway, because it is sweeet.

Imagine Enfo's, back in the days of WarCraft 3 UMS.

Now take that, and make it AWESOME.

Although there are a shortage of classes compared to enfo's, I really think it's better to have a good core than a multitude of ♥♥♥♥♥♥nobody will understand anyway.

Each class has an option of being more of the class, i.e. a tank/tank or a dps/tank. Or a healer/healer or a dps/healer, which is quite enjoyable if you're tired of always being the one that gets stuck with a certain role.

On a minor note, the channeling times for the enemies are a bit broken and unfortunately mean timing dodges are a bit of a challenge.

All in all, an awesome game.. It's more fun to play this game via co-op (it supports up to five players at a time), but is fairly enjoyable as a single player experience. Essentially, it's a cross between a MOBA and tower defense game. It's like the former in the sense that you'll choose a character (there are four characters for each of the four classes, each with different skills) and start at level 1 at the beginning of each match. As you level up, you can put points into your four skills and buy new items to place into your inventory. Instead of fighting other heroes, you'll be fending off waves of enemies (where the tower defense bit comes into play) who are trying to get to your missile silo. As you play a particular class, you'll level them up in a "path of glory" tech-tree/xp tree-esque system which unlocks different buffs and the like. Not as hardcore or complicated as say, "League of Legends", but it scratches that MOBA itch in a pinch.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Zy5rIFsJSA0>. I went into this expecting another run of the mill MOBA and, while that wasn't far off, there was a bit of a twist on the genre. Bloodsports.TV is a multiplayer online battle arena game from Fatshark and Toadman Interactive. Let's get rocking.

The Good

By now you've all played either League of Legends, or DOTA, or Smite, etc. Or, you live under a rock. My first experience in the MOBA world was Guardians of Middle-Earth and I anticipated every other MOBA I played after that would be, essentially, very similar. While B.TV is similar to your run of the mill MOBA, the object of the game is different and a lot less stressful. Rather than fighting the enemy team, you're working with your team to defend your base against waves of enemies. It's a blast.

I love the artwork in this game. I've been a fan of it ever since i first played Krater, another great addition to the gaming world from Fatshark. It's like a less serious, Fallout style post-apocalyptic wasteland full of Scandinavians. What's not to love? And the character designs are just fantastic.

The music is great, the controls are simple, the items are creative and fun, and the horde-style gameplay will keep you coming back for more.

The Bad

There wasn't really anything that turned me off to the game while I was playing. We can just move along.

The Meh

Because it's not one of the bigger name MOBAs, the community is pretty small and all but dead as far as I can tell. Don't let that deter you though if you're really wanting to play. It's a fun game nonetheless.

Also, you have to pay to get the game itself, unlike other MOBAs.

Verdict: Yea

Bloodsports.TV is a solid MOBA game and, if you're a fan of Krater, you're going to like it. If it goes on sale, don't hesitate to pick it up and give it a try. As always, thanks for reading.. Great game!

It's basically a coop moba with bosses. Choose a hero, choose a map, choose a difficulty, beat waves of enemies, earn gold and xp to level your hero and buy items in the shop. Get stronger over time through the path to glory challenge tree.

I especially like that it has permanent progression, difficulty scaling with # of players and easy server setup and management..

Wouldn't recommend getting it unless you can find 3 others to actively play with. The game looks like a decent PVE MOBA, but soloing only seems to be effective on certain (healer?) classes when playing in higher difficulties. Enemies do too much ranged damage against DPS class champions.. Simple, Fun, Interesting, and a little bit reptitive. It doesn't take long to learn.

Having friends to play with make it a much more exciting experience. Try and see how far you can get.. Very fun game, if you're a fan of the old warcraft 3 maps like X Hero Siege or Hero Defense this is definitely what you're looking for. Game is complex enough to stay fresh yet casual enough to appeal to everyone. Obviously best played with 4 other friends, but soloing is great too.
